COMPLAINTS FILED AGAINST DELINQUENTS.

Many Youngsters Being Brought Into Court to Answer for Various Charges Made by Officers.

Douglas Brinkerhoff, George Lucas, Floyd Hillman and Goldie B. Mahan have been declared delinquents by Juvenile Officer H. C. Jacobs, who filed formal complaints against the quartette this morning. The cases will be heard separately by Juvenile Judge V. C. Gunnell, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

In this connection it may be said that youthful delinquents are apparently increasing with the advance of the season, and last Saturday afternoon about two dozen youngsters were up before Judge Gunnell on various charges. His honor talked to the boys kindly, showed them the error of their ways and the young element of those arraigned readily promised to follow his honor's advice and improve their conduct.

Quite a number of those present, however, who were old enough to know the difference between right and wrong, evidenced an ambition to display a hoodlum spirit—and these will be disciplined in the future as their conduct deserves. While his honor is lenient to a fault in handling cases of this character, the court will draw the line sharply in the future and punish willful maliciousness without hesitation.

PLACED UNDER BONDS AND TURNED OVER TO SHERIFF

The local Peloponnesian war still simmers in the police courts and daily hearings with their attendant throngs of dark-visaged foreigners attract more than passing notice in municipal circles.

The case of Tom Pappas, charged with threatening to kill George Karakoskos, was up in court this morning and numerous witnesses were examined. A new interpreter was secured and considerable insight to the affairs of the contending Greeks was obtained. Sufficient evidence, however, was not produced to convince the court that the defendant was guilty as charged, and Pappas was dismissed.

Another arraignment was then made, a complaint having been sworn out by Hercules Comades against Gerassimos Gapanides, Georges Gapanides, Erotokritos Gapanides and Nik Stefatos, charging them with battery. Gerassimos, the first named, was the only one to appear, the others having effected their escape from the city. The defendant pleaded not guilty. He was placed under bonds to the amount of $300, and turned over to the custody of the sheriff.

SALOONKEEPER IS BEFORE JUDGE LAWLOR

San Francisco, March 30.—William D. Harrington, proprietor of a saloon, was brought before Superior Judge William P. Lawlor this morning to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. The order was made up on affidavits presented by the prosecution in the case of Patrick Calhoun, charged with bribery, and the documents filed today, allege that Harrington had improperly addressed Charles K. Blender, a real estate dealer, who was accepted last week as a juror in the case.

Juror Blender, called as a witness by Assistant District Attorney John O'Gara, was asked to give his account of the incident described in the affidavits, and said:

"On Saturday last I went into Harrington's saloon, near my home, and asked for a drink. The bartender served me, but Harrington stepped forward and asked me if I was going to hang Calhoun. The bartender then declared that he recognized me by a

INCUBATOR CHICKENS

The Petaluma Incubator Company's Exhibit at The California Poultry Show is regarded by visitors as the leading attraction. A 504-egg Petaluma Incubator was hauled from a Petaluma chicken ranch five miles to town, held over one night, and at 5 o'clock in the morning was hauled two miles further to Haystack Landing, conveyed to San Francisco by steamer "Gold," many chickens hatching on the way; those transferred to the Ferry Postoffice Building, where the show is being held, and hatched under these circumstances 90 per cent. The Petaluma Incubator is a first-class machine; the factory is of 27 years' standing, the oldest in the United States, employs more men, and is father of the great poultry industry not only of Petaluma, but of the Pacific Coast.

THE PORTLAND EXPOSITION AWARDS THE INCUBATOR PRIZE.

Incubator manufacturers have been keeping a watchful eye on the Portland Exposition as the time approached for awarding the prizes. The exposition is now closed and the expected has happened. The Petaluma walked off with the gold medal.

This really occasioned very little surprise. The Petaluma is regarded not only in the west Coast States, but all over the country, as an incubator of the first rank. And the company maintained an exhibit at Portland that was daily admired by thousands of visitors. It was so attractive and complete that had the matter been left to visitors on general appearances, there would never have been any question as to who should have had first honors. Of course, the judges had to go into other matters and consider the real merits of the machines, both incubators and brooders, and the Petaluma won out.

The Petaluma, by the way, has acquired the habit of winning gold medals. It did it at the World's Fair at Chicago, at the St. Louis Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and at all the fairs where they have exhibited from that on down to the Lewis & Clark Exposition. We congratulate the Petaluma Company, and are glad to publish the award to our readers. They and the general public are not so much interested in the matter of the honor as in being informed how the different machines rank when they are put on trial together and judged by competent authority. We believe no question has been made, in this instance, of the incubator honors being worthily bestowed.—American Poultry Journal, Dec. 1905.

picture published in one of the newspapers of the navy. It was under him as "I did not answer the question, but informed the men that they should not address me, after which I left and reported the matter to the court."

While the juror was in the midst of his narration, his fellow jurors entered and took their places in the box, and Patrick Calhoun, some of whose attorneys had given his testimony, Judge Lawlor continued the matter until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Harrington, upon being called to the stand, positively denied that he had made any such remark to the juror, and declared he had no recollection of having talked to Blender.

In order that the bartender might be summoned to give his testimony, Judge Lawlor continued the matter until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Steage Passenger Makes Wild Ride for Upper Deck to Kill Ex-President

New York, March 29.—Giuseppe Tosti, a steage passenger on the Hamburg, is the man who threatened ex-President Roosevelt, according to a special dispatch from Horta to the World.

The incident happened soon after the Hamburg was losing sight of America. Then Tosti broke from his companions in the steage and started for the upper deck, where Mr. Roosevelt was standing with his son, Kermit.

"He has let them take away my child," he is said to have shouted in English. "Now he shall pay for it."

Sailors quickly mastered Tosti, carried him below and by the captain's orders, put him in irons. The incident, it is stated, is known only to Mr. Roosevelt, and a few of his fellow passengers.

Tosti, after his imprisonment, refused for four days to eat, crying: "Roosevelt is trying to poison me." The ship's doctor must now taste all food offered to Tosti before he will eat it.

Washington, March 29.—Rear Admiral G. A. Converse, died at his home here tonight of uremic poisoning. Although placed on the retired list several years ago, he was in active service at the time of his death, being president of the board of construction chief of the bureau of navigation that the battleship fleet of 16 vessels which recently circled the globe, was assembled. His service to the navy, largely identified with torpedo and submarine work, was in the career of a naval torpedo station, Newport, R. I., when smokeless powder was introduced into the navy.

A prominent naval officer today in speaking of Admiral Converse, declared that his influence in the navy had been far-reaching and that his career was in some ways without parallel, one of these being that he served as head of three important bureaus.

Admiral Converse was born in Norwich, Vt., in 1844, graduated at Annapolis in 1865, at the head of his class, and during this Spanish-American war, and during the Spanish-American war, after which, previous to being made chief of the bureau of equipment, he commanded the first class battleship Illinois.
